ADEQUATE

As a store grows in importance, its ADVER-TISING must grow. But the advertising must grow -in volume, in liberality, in quality - FASTER THAN the STORE ITSELF GROWS.

This is true because the store MUST KEEP PACE WITH THE ADVERTISING-or, within hailing distance of it. It never does quite "catch up" any more than the cars of a train overtake the engine. And exactly as the engine "pulls the train along," so the advertising "pulls the store along."

To pursue the comparison: It requires a bigger engine to pull a thirty-car train than it does to pull a ten-car train. And it takes more advertising to "pull" a "hundred-clerk store" than it does to pull a ten-clerk one.

The train will not make much progress on the days that the engine is NOT RUNNING; but it will make just as good progress on those days as will a store ON THE DAYS WHEN THE ADVERTIS-ING IS NOT RUNNING.

YOUR ADVERTISING IS "ADEQUATE" when it is STRONG ENOUGH TO PULL THE STORE ALONG AFTER IT; and when it is RUN-NING on every day that you desire to SEEK BUS-INESS and to increase trade.
